RACERS AFTER NEW RECORD

DURAY IS CONCEDED TO HAVE SPEEDIEST
AUTO IN COUNTRY

Woodbury Has Pole;
150,000 Gather At Speedway

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 30.—Staking their lives against a chance for fame, thirty-three drivers begin the annual 500-mile Indianapolis motor speedway race today.

As the drivers lined up in eleven rows of threes for the start it was believed the winner would break all records in this, the last race in which the present type of racing cars will be used.

The American Automobile Association has agreed that the tiny-engined, one seater type of automobile will go out of existence this year and that a two-seater with the large type of motor will come in for next year's race.

This fact led drivers to shoot at a record today, inasmuch as they are agreed that the two-seaters cannot approach the present mark which was made by Pete De Paolo in 1925. De Paolo ran the 500-miles at an average of 101.130 miles an hour.

At least three drivers were conceded a chance to break the record.

One of them, Leon Duray, is known as the "dare devil" of the track and the other two, Cliff Woodbury and Ralph Hepburn, are among the best in the country.

Duray has what is believed to be the fastest car in the country. Although he was driving it at a speed approaching 130 miles an hour in tests before the race he did not run through his qualifying heat fast enough to gain the pole position. Woodbury took the pole at a speed of slightly more than 121 miles an hour and Duray was surprised that his car had not averaged 125.

The pole is worth thousands of dollars if a driver can hold it, since the winner of each lap receives $100.

There is no driver today who will take more chances than Duray, and the approximately 150,000 people who gathered for the race looked forward to a great fight between Woodbury and Leon for the front position immediately after the start.

Known as the greatest "turn" man in the country Duray probably will attempt to take Woodbury on the southwest turn of the second lap and the crowd was anticipating a hair raising scene.

Although thirty-five drivers complied with the qualifying rules (ten miles at a speed of more than ninety miles an hour) only thirty-three will be allowed to start, since the A. A. A. has ruled that thirty-three cars are all that can safely race here. Every driver who will start averaged more than 100 miles an hour in his qualifying heat.

The drivers were unanimous that a new record would be made.

"We'll make the last one the fastest," one prominent pilot said. "There isn't a car starting which cannot better the record and I can't see how the race can be run without the winner coming through in record time."

The race will begin at 10 a.m. (C. S. T.)

Police have received instructions to strictly enforce an ordinance which prohibits the keeping of hogs within the corporation limits of the city.

It is warned that all hogs must be removed from property within the city.

FLYER SETS NEW ENDURANCE RECORD FOR SOLO AIR FLIGHT

LIEUT. HERBERT J. FAHY

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 30.—Another new air record has been added to the string already recorded in various parts of the country this week.

Lieut. Herbert Fahy brought his Lockheed Vega monoplane to rest at the Metropolitan airport here last night after remaining in the air thirty-six hours fifty-six minutes and thirty-six seconds. This was two hours longer than the old mark for solo, non-refueling in air flights.

Fahy's gasoline supply was exhausted when he coasted to a perfect dead stick landing.

It was the fifth record claimed this week. The monoplane Fort Worth established a new mark for refueling in air, remaining aloft over 472 hours and landing last Sunday.

A new altitude record for women was claimed by Miss Marvel Crosson who took her plane to 24,000 feet here. Official confirmation of this mark is expected from Washington.

At East St. Louis, Ill., Barney Zimmerman claimed two records for planes of approximately 800 pounds, asserting he flew his monoplane to an altitude of 25,100 feet, which would break two previous marks for various types of light planes.

WEATHER PREVENTS PLANES TAKING OFF FOR OCEAN FLIGHTS

Reported Head Winds Over Atlantic Delay Starts

OLD ORCHARD, Me., May 30.—The trans-Atlantic flight attempts of the monoplanes Green Flash and Yellow Bird, balked by accidents yesterday, were held up indefinitely today by adverse weather conditions.

Postponements were decided upon a report from Dr. James H. Kimball of the New York weather bureau stating that head winds the other pilot of the French craft, would be encountered over the Atlantic, had been received.

Armeno Lotti, backer of the Yellow Bird project for a flight to Paris, said he would leave during the day with Rene LeFevre, pilot for New York, there to await more propitious weather. Jean Assolant, the other pilot of the French craft, remained here.

Roger Q. Williams and Lewis A. Yancey of the American plane hoped to take off tomorrow, but said they would wait longer if necessary for favorable conditions.

The broken wheel of the Green Flash was repaired last night and the plane put in readiness for another attempt to get away toward Rome.

The Green Flash started its run down the beach for a hop-off at 9:50 a. m. yesterday. Loaded heavily with fuel and oil, it sank down in the sand, its wheel twisted. After the plane was righted it was found that the damage made a start impossible.

The Yellow Bird made a graceful getaway under its heavy load but developed a gasoline leakage a short distance out and the plane returned to the beach after dumping its fuel.

ACTRESS TRUE TO FILM TRADITIONS

CLEVELAND, May 30.—Mrs. Sylvia Harris, 20, former movie actress, refused to "break ancestral ties."

Her husband, Milton K. Harris, real estate operator, made this allegation in his suit for divorce on grounds of gross neglect of duty. He charged her affection for her mother broke up their home.

He was cruel, used harsh language and failed to buy her any clothes. Mrs. Harris counter-charged in her suit for alimony. She alleged her husband earned $25,000 annually.

Mrs. Harris appeared in prologues and minor roles for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

PARIS, May 30.—A summons to pay income tax has just been mailed to Charles Nungesser, the French air ace who died with Coli in the first attempt to cross the Atlantic from East to West two years ago.

The BIVOUAC of the DEAD

by Theodore O'Hara

THE muffled drum's sad roll has beat

The soldier's last tattoo;

No more on Life's parade shall meet

That brave and fallen few.

On Fame's eternal camping-ground

Their silent tents are spread,

And Glory guards, with solemn round,

The bivouac of the dead.

Rest on, embalmed and sainted dead!

Dear as the blood ye gave;

No impious footstep here shall tread

The herbage of your grave;

Nor shall your story be forgot,

While Fame her record keeps,

Or Honor points the hallowed spot

Where Valor proudly sleeps.

Yon marble minstrel's voiceless stone

In deathless song shall tell,

When many a vanished age hath flown,

The story how ye fell;

Nor wreck, nor change, nor winter's blight

No time's remorseless doom,

Shall dim one ray of glory's light

That gilds your deathless tomb.

CAISSON EXPLODES WHILE "SAND HOGS" WORKED UNDER RIVER

Believe Victims Were Suffocated With Mud And Water

JERSEY CITY, May 30.—Five men are known to have been killed and two more are missing as the result of an explosion in a bridge caisson seventy feet below the surface of the Hackensack River last night.

Early today rescuers said they believed the missing men probably were suffocated when mud and water virtually filled the chamber in which the "sand hogs" were working. Most of the nine men who either were blown clear of the caisson or rescued, were treated for injuries, some of which were serious.

The caisson was one sunk to build a foundation for the bridge that is being thrown across the river between West Newark Ave., Jersey City, and Kearny, N. J., to provide for traffic to and from the Jersey City entrance of the Holland vehicular tunnel, connecting New Jersey and New York.

While the cause of the explosion was undetermined officially, John Mulcahy, one of the workers, expressed the belief that when a leak in the caisson was repaired, the air pressure became too great and blew off the lid. Ordinarily, he said, the men would be working under an air pressure of about 52 pounds, but a mist began forming in the bottom of the caisson and the "sand hogs" called for greater pressure until they had about 80 pounds.

Survivors told of the horrible death to which the men who were trapped in the steel cylinder went.

EXPLOSION PROVES ONLY LIVELY BREW

CLEVELAND, May 30.—Above the din of a busy day at Central police station a roar sounded.

"An explosion," someone shouted. "Visions of the Cleveland Clinic disaster flashed through the minds of everyone. Persons rushed for doors. Confusion reigned. Court proceedings halted.

"Gummen are firing on the station," a spectator shouted.

At the bottom of a basement stairway stood Sergeant Patrick Holland. Above him the floor was wet and strewn with broken glass.

"Don't get excited," said Holland, "I was carrying a box of gunpowder. The bottom of this box I was carrying gave way and the stuff fell through."

The "stuff" had been twenty-four bottles of high-powered home brew.

Twelve jurors who heard her lawyer plead for a judgment in that amount against the Great Lakes Stages Inc. returned a unanimous verdict for the defendant. Miss Buschmann's attorneys declined to announce future plans.

Effects of the accident upon Miss Buschmann resulted in one of the strangest cases known to medical science. She lay in a coma month after month, and was fed artificial

BUDGET FOR COUNTY SCHOOLS SUBMITTED

The 1930 budget of the Xenia Township school district, submitted to County Auditor R. O. Wead for consideration by the County Budget Commission, calls for $45,660 for operation of schools in the district next year.

The budget request is slightly greater than for this year. The district asked $45,000 to run the schools in 1928 and was allowed this sum.

This is the only budget on file with Auditor Wead, who announces that thirty-nine taxing districts in Greene County must file their 1930 budgets by July 15.

Handwritten Letters Passe Says Woman

By LILIAN CAMPBELL

HANDWRITTEN "copy" letters, etc., in clubland are fast becoming passe, according to Mrs. William R. Alvord of Detroit, chairman of the department of press and publicity of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

"It is becoming as mid-victorian for club women to send out letters in long hand as it is to use adjectives and violet ink in their correspondence," she declares. "They may use the self-taught 'pick and peck' or the 'hunt and seek' method, but the result is a joy to behold."

"In fact, typewriters have become so necessary a part of Madame President's equipment for service, that if it comes to a question of a new gown to grace the office, or a typewriter, she chooses the typewriter. And that reminds one of the days when club women went conventioning with trunks, hat boxes and bags. Today woman travels around the world with her belongings in a single suitcase, but in her other hand she carries her portable typewriter, whether she travels for business or pleasure."

"Not only in letter writing, however, have club women acquired modern up-to-date methods. Annual meetings used to be thought such a bore, so long and uninteresting! Even the church guilds and ladies' aids have perks up business meetings these days, conducted according to the best authorities in parliamentary procedure."

"The club movement may not have accomplished all that its ardent enthusiasts claim for it, but certainly it has increased woman's efficiency and taught her business methods."

Today woman travels around the world with her belongings in a single suitcase, but in her other hand she carries her portable typewriter, whether she travels for business or pleasure.

"Not only in letter writing, however, have club women acquired modern up-to-date methods. Annual meetings used to be thought such a bore, so long and uninteresting. Even the church guilds and ladies' aids have perked-up business meetings these days, conducted according to the best authorities in parliamentary procedure.

"The club movement may not have accomplished all that its ardent enthusiasts claim for it, but certainly it has increased woman's efficiency and taught her business methods."

A FORMER XENIAN

Editor The Gazette:—Kennewick, Washington is situated on the Columbia River, in Benton Co., with a population of 3,000. It is very prosperous and a beautiful little western city.

Fruits of all kind are grown quite extensively also the Martha Washington asparagus is being planted more each year, as it brings very good prices, in a favorable season, but we are having a very late spring and quite cool, so cool that the grass was very light this year. Also the early fruits were killed this winter with the largest cold spell we have experienced for many a year, in the Yakima Valley, but generally speaking, I guess the whole country suffered quite a set-back.

The strawberries are being picked now, but slow, it has been a backward season for everything, but the first crate was sold last week for $5.00. If we have a few hot weeks there will be lots of fine berries for the market. We have quit cutting asparagus and now comes the thinning of apples, spraying of the fruit trees, which has to be done every fourteen days until about the first of July.

There are thousands of sheep raised in this valley, but they are all in the mountains for the summer pasture, as it is cool for them. We have an airport just outside of town also an air mail service.

It will be five years in July since I came west, and I have worked in all kinds of fruit, and like the climate here fine. It gets up to 110 to 120 degrees in the day time, but by the time people go to bed it is cool enough to sleep under a cover.

The reason for that is we are situated between two mountain ranges, Cascades on the west and the Rockies on the east, and when the sun gets over the top of the Cascades, then the air cools down and makes it very pleasant, after a long hot day's work right along in the orchard with the men all dressed in overalls. It was sure a shock to me to see the women going about the streets and in the business houses dressed in overalls, but the funny thing is I am doing the same. I am afraid some of those people back there would die with mortification and shame if they could see the women climb a ladder to pick fruit. When there is plenty work here the Indians from Pendleton and Umatilla come here in their fine limousines and pick fruit. It sure is comical to watch them. They are very friendly. As far as women dressing in overalls, I think it is the proper dress for those that work in those rope mills in which I worked at the R. A. Kelly mill for eleven years and I realize they should be compelled to wear them, not only for the convenience of them but for the safety of their life. The only fault I find with this town is when the fruit is all gathered then there is nothing to do in the winter. We have fruit packing houses here, and they get through about Thanksgiving. Although I like the West still I long for the East.

Some of these days, I think I will visit back there, but God knows when, I don't.

The Forum prints a "Socratic Dialogue" on the moot point whether or not Prohibition can succeed. Prof. Irving Fisher is the chief protagonist for the affirmative and has the aid of H. B. Brougham, editor of the "Index Number Institute." Differing with them are Fabian Franklin, eminent economist and statistician, Frank G. Davison, novelist, John C. Gerhart, researcher for the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, and George W. Martin, attorney.

"When people tell you there is more drinking now than there was before Prohibition," says Prof. Fisher, "they simply do not know what they are talking about. The evidence given in my books on the subject indicates that the alcohol drunk today is probably not one tenth of what was drunk before Prohibition. It is the common opinion of economists that the high price indicates scarcity. It must indicate either a small supply or a large demand."

"Today," Prof. Fisher asserts in closing the dialogue, "with our many ways of amusing ourselves, the old attraction of the saloon is gone. There is less need for drinking. People have their amusements—the radio, the automobile, and many other ways to amuse themselves; and for this reason, because we have other ways than paralyzing our nerves by which to get rested from our work, it will be easier in the future to make prohibition succeed. People will stop drinking. That is the primary point. I also think there will be less corruption and disrepect for law."

THE CHILDREN'S PRESIDENT

President Hoover's name should go down in history as "The Children's President," says John Palmer Gavit in discussing the President's duty to the youth of the nation in the May issue of "Children, The Parent's Magazine."

"Business, industry, agriculture," writes Mr. Gavit, "all profess tremendous concern in the choice of a President for the United States. But what is their concern compared with that we should all feel for the health and safety of the children of this nation? Surely the first duty of a president should be to assure them protection and care. It is a shocking fact that the last census reports that in this country one baby out of every 16 born in 1927 died before he reached one year of age."

More than any other President, Herbert Hoover is on record as the children's advocate, Mr. Gavit points out. "To 65 out of every 1,000 infants it is a desperate matter, whether President Hoover makes the most of his tremendous opportunity in their behalf. It is every person's business, to be sure, to do what he can to leave the world a little better than he found it; it is peculiarly the business of the President of the United States to lead in making the country a better place in which to be born."

NEW YORK—Often the bad blood that flows between competing columnists comes out, and they go into a passionate clinch. Take Eddie Hope of the N. Y. Herald Tribune and Russel Crouse of the N. Y. Evening Post, who once yowled at each other over a trifle. Today, however, they are warm friends. The tiff was over a paragraph, of course. Hope groaning that Crouse had used one of his flip cracks. Crouse cracked back: "I am really sorry about this, for as a rule I am not so busy as I was yesterday, and when I think up something clever I always rush to inspect the Herald Tribune files, because it is most likely that Hope thought of it first."

THE RIGHT ANSWER

Buddy Doyle, the highest paid understudy of them all, is Eddie Cantor's man-in-waiting, having patiently waited around the "Whoopie" stage door for months in case the star becomes ill or disabled. But Cantor is very healthy. At the Friars' Frolic Sunday night Doyle shone in a travesty about the situation.

"Don't become impatient, Buddy," comforted a straight man. "It looks like you'll play Eddie's part now that he has announced his intention to retire."

"Hummum," hummum'd the pessimistic understudy, "won't I look comical playing his part in a beard all the way down to here!"

THE BELITTLED

Not all the celebrated or public men can take a joke or leave one alone. Clayton Hamilton, Crixamente, has never forgiven the confere who let fly: "The perfect critic wrote the perfect play and it lasted one night!" Truth is something that rankles for all time.

A former president's son still yips at a renowned essayist who wrote of him: "He's a caricature of a ghost," and two New York paragrapghers have avoided each other for years because when one of them

INGERSOLL'S VISION

Robert G. Ingersoll, far from orthodoxy in his religious belief, had an active mind, great vision, keen imagination. He looked out upon the future with an optimistic certainty of man's continuing and expanding ingenuity. In a lecture he said: "I see a world without a slave. Nature's forces have by science been enslaved. Lightning and light, wind and wave, frost and flame, and all the secret, subtle powers of the earth and air are the tireless toilers for the human race."

THE SENSE OF POWER

Ingersoll's vision of the future in the material world has crystallized into a reality. Man has enslaved the mysterious forces of nature. It has been said that the most amazing asset man has acquired in the last ten years is a sense of power. It is an acquisition loaded with immeasurable possibilities for good—and yet it is a dangerous boon.

WORLD WAR DESCRIBED AS STILL BEING WAGED

BY WILLIAM E. BORAH
Senator from Idaho.

(William Edgar Borah was born at Fairfield, Ill., June 29, 1865. He is a graduate of the University of Kansas. Admitted to the bar in 1889, he began practicing law at Lyons, Kas., moving to Boise, Idaho, in 1891 where his home has been since. Elected to the senate in 1907, he is now serving his fourth term. From 1908 to 1912 he was a member of the Republican national committee.)

When the Treaty of Versailles was signed and celebrated French statesmen declared "this treaty is a continuation of the war." Subsequent years and subsequent events seem to have confirmed this extraordinary prophecy.

Perhaps the most important question or problem in international affairs at this time is how shall we get from under the feelings, the influence, the spell of the World war.

We proceed along the same lines and in the same way particularly in international affairs as we would proceed if the war had but closed yesterday. We are not building with our faces to the future, but building with our minds upon the past. How long shall the spirit of Versailles animate and direct international affairs? There has not been a confidence in Europe these 10 years but has been rendered practically ineffective by reason of this war spirit.

Step by step for the last 10 years while talking of disarmament and peace, while professing to want peace, there has been fastened upon the world the heaviest military establishments in all history. There are more men under arms at the present time than at the beginning of the World war. Humanity escaped from the World war mangled and bleeding and carrying a great tax burden which meant and still means hunger and disease to millions of men, women and children.

Truly, in the language of the French statesmen, the Versailles treaty was a continuation of the war. It has not been waged just as it was waged prior to November 11, 1918, but waged in a way scarcely less deadly in its effect upon millions of human beings.

Poverty is entitled to be heard. Those who must bear the burden of these days are entitled to be heard. What would have happened to this country if at the close of the great Civil War Lincoln and Grant and those leaders had refused to turn their backs to the past and their face to the future?

And oh! 'tis delicious to hate you!

MEMORIAL DAY

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Smartness in dress is what every woman wants to achieve and what comparatively few succeed in achieving to any great extent. Contrary to the belief of many women, it is not to be had by wearing "the latest" of everything so that one's appearance cries aloud with novelty, nor is it wearing only expensive clothes so that costliness is obvious.

What is smartness? Everyone can recognize it, but few can tell just what goes to make it up. For one thing, it is knowing just where to place the emphasis of one's costume and how to subordinate the rest to harmonious perfection.

If you have chosen one color to be the keynote of an ensemble, be sure to make that color dominant.

Use another with it for contrast if you like, but don't try to use several others and expect to obtain any unity of effect. Colors are jealous quantities to work with.

Often one tries to outdo the other, to bring the eye's attention to itself. If several of equal value are present in any one costume the result may be confusing.

One secret of the French woman's unfailing success in dress is her knowledge that time and material are of greater importance than color. Too many English and American women—of yesteryear rather than today—were inclined to put all the burden of importance of their costumes on colors.

If a color was becoming, if it made them look "pretty" and brought out attractively the lights in their hair and eyes and the fairness of their skin, they bought a dress in that color, regardless of whether the lines of the dress suited to the figure or not.

Now you may bring your picture-drawn image nearer. Is the material of your costume good? Will it stand close observation and seem lovelier, easier to look at, as you draw near? Remember that cheap material is not an economy—not if you would be smart. It does not hold its shape well and can entirely spoil the perfection of an otherwise charming costume.

Now you may consider the color of your dress, its trimming and little accessories. These things grow important as you take a nearer view of yourself. Make them all harmonious and becoming.

Those were the days when a maiden could gather a few yards of pink or blue muslin or taffeta into a garment called a dress, tie a sash around her waist, fluff out her hair and depend upon the lovely color scheme to make her the belle of the ball.

The modern well-dressed woman selects her clothes with more brains. She knows that there can be no "faking" of an impression.

Only art and skill can make her a distinctive, charming figure worth remembering in these days when many women are most attractive.

that those interests' best friends, in the long run, are those of us who counsel moderation. It will not prevent a reaction, but it may prevent a violent one."

A sudden tearing down of the whole tariff framework, as the Missouri representative has intimated, certainly would be violent a-plenty—practically amounting to a revolution.

Does he prophesy anything so drastic?

"The American people," answered the congresswoman, "are essentially conservative. Their preference assuredly will be for a gradual readjustment.

"No, there need not be a dislocation of business in the process."

"Where two groups which should divide 50-50 actually have been dividing 75-25, the former group will be cut down to 50 per cent, but the latter will be advanced to the same figure. At this distance the complete impression is one first of silhouette; in other words of 'line.' The tiny details of the costume do not show but your figure does. Be sure that it is well moulded and perfect in line, not bulky and poorly fitted.

If you would follow this idea of smartness in dress, think of the appearance that you wish to make when standing at some little distance from an observer. "When people tell you there is more drinking now than there was before Prohibition," says Prof. Fisher, "they simply do not know what they are talking about. The evidence given in my books on the subject indicates that the alcohol drunk today is probably not one tenth of what was drunk before Prohibition. It is the common opinion of economists that the high price indicates scarcity. It must indicate either a small supply or a large demand."

"Today," Prof. Fisher asserts in closing the dialogue, "with our many ways of amusing ourselves, the old attraction of the saloon is gone. There is less need for drinking. People have their amusements—the radio, the automobile, and many other ways to amuse themselves; and for this reason, because we have other ways than paralyzing our nerves by which to get rested from our work, it will be easier in the future to make prohibition succeed. People will stop drinking. That is the primary point. I also think there will be less corruption and disrepect for law."

THE CHILDREN'S PRESIDENT

President Hoover's name should go down in history as "The Children's President," says John Palmer Gavit in discussing the President's duty to the youth of the nation in the May issue of "Children, The Parent's Magazine."

"Business, industry, agriculture," writes Mr. Gavit, "all profess tremendous concern in the choice of a President for the United States. But what is their concern compared with that we should all feel for the health and safety of the children of this nation? Surely the first duty of a president should be to assure them protection and care. It is a shocking fact that the last census reports that in this country one baby out of every 16 born in 1927 died before he reached one year of age."

More than any other President, Herbert Hoover is on record as the children's advocate, Mr. Gavit points out. "To 65 out of every 1,000 infants it is a desperate matter, whether President Hoover makes the most of his tremendous opportunity in their behalf. It is every person's business, to be sure, to do what he can to leave the world a little better than he found it; it is peculiarly the business of the President of the United States to lead in making the country a better place in which to be born."

Your BROADWAY And Mine

NEW YORK—Often the bad blood that flows between competing columnists comes out, and they go into a passionate clinch. Take Eddie Hope of the N. Y. Herald Tribune and Russel Crouse of the N. Y. Evening Post, who once yowled at each other over a trifle. Today, however, they are warm friends. The trifl was over a paragraph, of course. Hope groaning that Crouse had used one of his flip cracks. Crouse smacked back: "I am really sorry about this, for as a rule I am not so busy as I was yesterday, and when I think up something clever I always rush to inspect the Herald Tribune files, because it is most likely that Hope thought of it first."

THE EIGHT ANSWER

Buddy Doyle, the highest paid understudy of them all, is Eddie Cantor's man-in-waiting, having patiently waited around the "Whoopie" stage door for months in case the star becomes ill or disabled. But Eddie is very healthy. At the Friars' Frolic Sunday night Doyle shone in a travesty about the situation.

"Don't become impatient, Buddy," comforted a straight man, "it looks like you'll play Eddie's part now that he has announced his intention to retire."

"Hummum," hummum'd the pessimistic understudy, "won't I look comical playing his part in a beard all the way down to here!"

THE PRESS AND PEACE

The president well understands the power of newspapers. He says: "Increasing interest in international affairs, fostered by more complete journalistic reports and editorial discussion, tends to improve international relations and reduce difficulties in the way of mutual good-will."

The editors of the world, if they would, could probably preserve the peace of the world. Newspapers which are going to make a serious contribution to our times must give more space and attention to topics of international interest.

INGERSOLL'S VISION

Robert G. Ingersoll, far from orthodox in his religious belief, had an active mind, great vision, keen imagination. He looked out upon the future with an optimistic certainty of man's continuing and expanding ingenuity. In a lecture he said: "I see a world without a slave. Nature's forces have by science been enslaved. Lightning and light, wind and wave, frost and flame, and all the secret, subtle powers of the earth and air are the tireless tollers for the human race."

THE SENSE OF POWER

Ingersoll's vision of the future in the material world has crystallized into a reality. Man has enslaved the mysterious forces of nature. It has been said that the most amazing asset man has acquired in the last ten years is a sense of power. It is an acquisition loaded with immeasurable possibilities for good—and yet it is a dangerous boon.

WORLD WAR DESCRIBED AS STILL BEING WAGED
By WILLIAM E. BORAH

Senator from Idaho.

William Edgar Borah was born at Fairfield, Ill., June 29, 1865. He is a graduate of the University of Kansas. Admitted to the bar in 1889, he began practicing law at Lyons, Kas., moving to Boise, Idaho, in 1891 where his home has been since. Elected to the senate in 1907, he is now serving his fourth term. From 1908 to 1912 he was a member of the Republican national committee.

When the Treaty of Versailles was signed and celebrated French statesmen declared "this treaty is a continuation of the war." Subsequent years and subsequent events seem to have confirmed this extraordinary prophecy.

Perhaps the most important question or problem in international affairs at this time is how shall we get from under the feelings, the influence, the spell of the World War. We proceed along the same lines and in the same way particularly in international affairs as we would proceed if the war had but closed yesterday. We are not building with our faces to the future, but building with our minds upon the past. How long shall the spirit of Versailles dominate and direct international affairs? There has not been a confidence in Europe these 10 years but has been rendered practically ineffective by reason of this war spirit.

Step by step for the last 10 years while talking of disarmament and peace, while professing to want peace, there has been fastened upon the world the heaviest military establishments in all history. There are more men under arms at the present time than at the beginning of the World war. Humanity escaped from the World war mangled and bleeding and carrying a great tax burden which meant and still means hunger and disease to millions of men, women and children.

Truly, in the language of the French statesmen, the Versailles treaty was a continuation of the war. It has not been waged just as it was waged prior to November 11, 1918, but waged in a way scarcely less deadly in its effect upon millions of human beings.

Poverty is entitled to be heard. Those who must bear the burden these days are entitled to be heard. What would have happened to this country if at the close of the great Civil war Lincoln and Grant and those leaders had refused to turn their backs to the past and their face to the future?

And oh! 'tis delicious to hate you!

MEMORIAL DAY

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Smartness in dress is what every woman wants to achieve and what comparatively few succeed in achieving to any great extent. Contrary to the belief of many women, it is not to be had by wearing "the latest" of everything so that one's appearance cries aloud with novelty, nor is it wearing only expensive clothes so that costliness is obvious.

What is smartness? Everyone can recognize it, but few can tell just what goes to make it up. For one thing, it is known just where to place the emphasis of one's costume and how to subordinate the rest to harmonious perfection. Only art and skill can make her a distinctive, charming figure worth remembering in these days when many women are most attractive. Perhaps she has determined a color scheme for her wardrobe in the colors that are new and that she wears extremely well. But never does she choose a costume for its color alone. Line comes first. Then material. Then color. The latter being more adaptable and less important.

If you would follow this idea of smartness in dress, think of the appearance that you wish to make when standing at some little distance from an observer. At this distance the complete impression is one first of silhouette; in other words of "line." The tiny details of the costume do not show but your figure does. Be sure that it is well moulded and perfect in line, not bulky and poorly fitted.

Now you may bring your picture image nearer. Is the material of your costume good? Will it stand close observation and seem lovelier, easier to look at, as you draw near? Remember that cheap material is not an economy—not if you would be smart. It does not hold its shape well, and can entirely spoil the perfection of an otherwise charming costume.

Now you may consider the color of your dress, its trimming and little accessories. These things grow important as you take a nearer view of yourself. Make them all harmonious and becoming. But think of yourself first as a pen and ink sketch—for line and light and dark silhouette values. Then fill your drawing in with color.

There have been several requests for bridal dinner menus. This one is not very expensive and is adequate. If you like, homemade ice cream can be substituted for the fancy variety that is sold by the manufacturers, although it is very attractive. If you make it yourself, vanilla with strawberries is nice.

DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I read your column the first thing every night. I am sure you can help me as you have helped and eased others. Here is my problem: I have fallen from the "straight and narrow." He promised me everything and as soon as he made good in business I was to be his wife. Vir-

DEAR MARY: I am so sorry you are not afraid of discussing sex matters with their daughters. When girls are told just what is the difference between men and women, and how in giving way to an importunate lover and to her own passions not only smirches herself for all time, but often makes an innocent child carry the stigma of illegitimacy all its life, many, many girls would be saved from life-long regret.

Men buy second-hand furniture, second-hand cars, even, at times, second-hand clothing but they want wives who are "clean," no matter what kind of lives they themselves have lived. I know there are women who live what they call "fancy lives" in this respect, but unless a woman is a genius in some special line—like a great artist, dancer, actress, she can't at the present stage of society, anyway—"get away with it."

How much of women's feeling that she is disgraced forever if one loses her virtue"—as the old saying is, comes from generations of training, and how much from a natural law which aims to protect the young from possible taint. I can't say, but certain it is that women do suffer mentally—as well as physically—more than men in any affairs of this kind.

Clear skies are predicted for the running of the entire race, leading drivers and officials to the opinion that records would be smashed.

Providing Eric Krenz and Harlow Rother, those young giants from California, are in top form, the fifty-third annual L. C. A. A. A. track and field meet on Franklin Field Friday and Saturday may produce some record-breaking efforts. Admittedly there is no college shot putter in the East capable of holding his own with this husky pair and the duel of these coast youths may lead to a record.

Following the cloud burst which swept a yellow lake over the track at Churchill Downs on Derby Day, race fans are hoping that the track will be fast for the Belmont Stakes next month.

Little Clyde Van Dusen proved himself the best and gamest of the bunch of three-year-old mud larks that had their fun in the Derby. Inasmuch as the Man-o'-War gelding will not be at Belmont for sufficient reasons, the others deserve a fast track to provide a test of their real greatness.

Did you notice that the Kentucky Derby winner ran third in a race at the Downs the other day?

Will wonders never cease? Shanner, that promising youngster who has been warming the bench for the Cincinnati Reds practically all season, replaced Kelly and played first base for the Reds in both halves of the double-header with St. Louis Wednesday. Fielding flawlessly, Shanner drove in a run with a single in the first game and scored another himself. In the nightcap, he also hit safely once. It is to be hoped that he may play regularly and have a chance to prove his worth.

DOCTORS GIVE AWAY VAST SUMS IN OHIO

TOLEDO, May 30.—Fabulous incomes of members of the medical profession are a myth, Dr. C. W. Waggoner, president-elect of the Ohio State Medical Association, declared in an address before the Academy of Medicine.

"Twenty million dollars worth of free medical service is donated each year by the doctors of this state," Dr. Waggoner asserted. "Health appears to be the last matter in importance to the people of this country. Ten times more money is spent for super-luxuries than for necessary medical care."

Dr. Waggoner produced statistics showing the cost of medical services has not increased to the patient, since 1913 in proportion to increases in other lines. The average net income of physicians throughout the United States is $3,000, he declared.

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctor's word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

HOOVEN AND ALLISON BEATS POSTOFFICE TEAM IN LOOP TILT

A five-run rally in the last half of the ninth inning fell short of evening the score by one run and the Hooven and Allison Co. avenged an early season defeat by turning the tables on the Post Office nine for a 17 to 16 victory in an American League softball game Wednesday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

The H. and A. assumed a four-run lead in the second inning but the mailmen trotted five runs across the plate in the third. This advantage, however, slipped away when the H. and A. tallied three runs in the fourth, six in the fifth, two in the sixth and one in both the seventh and eighth rounds. On the short end of a 17 to 6 count, the postal team uncorked five-run rallies in the eighth and ninth stanzas.

The winners collected fourteen hits off the delivery of Downey, Post Office hurler, while the losers made seventeen safe drives off Williams, H. and A. pitcher.

Leadership of the National League will be at stake when the unbeaten Harness Cigars and the second-place Downtown Country Club team meet Friday night. No game will be played Thursday night because of the Memorial Day holiday. Lineups:

PARACHUTE JUMP IS NOTHING SAYS GIRL

COLUMBUS, O., May 30.—Parachute jumping doesn't hold a qualm for blase Norma May Stevens, 19-year-old Columbus girl.

Miss Stevens began "chute jumping" in Akron, May 20, 1928. She now is a veteran of forty jumps.

"I had been a show girl for two years and was tired of it," she explained. "I liked aviation so I decided to learn it."

With a few jumps her fear of the air was conquered. Soon she began piloting a plane. She now claims ten hours of solo flying.

A parachute jump at Lorain last September almost had fatal results.

Floating downward she saw herself nearing high tension wires. She lunged to escape the wires but her parachute shroud lines caught on them.

The parachute was deflated and she fell about 100 feet to the ground. The result was three broken ribs, a dislocated shoulder and an injured ankle.

"I never worry about the 'chute not opening," says Miss Stevens, "for I figure I can reach back in the pack and open it in case the rip cord doesn't work."

When your Children Cry for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fussy. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctor's word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle unopened to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

HOOVEN AND ALLISON BEATS POSTOFFICE TEAM IN LOOP TILT

A five-run rally in the last half of the ninth inning fell short of evening the score by one run and the Hooven and Allison Co. avenged an early season defeat by turning the tables on the Post Office nine for a 17 to 16 victory in an American League softball game Wednesday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

The H. and A. assumed a four-run lead in the second inning but the mailmen trotted five runs across the plate in the third. This advantage, however, slipped away when the H. and A. tallied three runs in the fourth, six in the fifth, two in the sixth and one in both the seventh and eighth rounds.

On the short end of a 17 to 6 count, the postal team uncorked five-run rallies in the eighth and ninth stanzas.

The winners collected fourteen hits off the delivery of Downey, Post Office hurler, while the losers made seventeen safe drives off Williams, H. and A. pitcher.

Leadership of the National League will be at stake when the unbeaten Harness Cigars and the second-place Downtown Country Club team meet Friday night. No game will be played Thursday night because of the Memorial Day holiday. Lineups:

Parachute jumping doesn't hold a qualm for blase Norma May Stevens, 19-year-old Columbus girl. Miss Stevens began "chute jumping" in Akron, May 20, 1928. She now is a veteran of forty jumps.

"I had been a show girl for two years and was tired of it," she explained. "I liked aviation so I decided to learn it."

With a few jumps her fear of the air was conquered. Soon she began piloting a plane. She now claims ten hours of solo flying.

A parachute jump at Lorain last September almost had fatal results.

Floating downward she saw herself nearing high tension wires. She lunged to escape the wires but her parachute shroud lines caught on them.

The parachute was deflated and she fell about 100 feet to the ground. The result was three broken ribs, a dislocated shoulder and an injured ankle.

"I never worry about the 'chute not opening," says Miss Stevens. "For I figure I can reach back in the pack and open it in case the rip cord doesn't work."

CEDARVILLE DROPS ANOTHER LOOP GAME

Cedarville College's baseball team continued its losing ways by dropping a C. A. W. W. League game to Wilmington College by a score of 11 to 4 on the Cedarville diamond Wednesday afternoon.

Blackburn, Wilmington pitcher, who blanked the "Yellow-Jackets" in a game at Wilmington several weeks ago, was hit more freely Wednesday but had good support at bat. Albert Turner hurled for the Bostmen but was ineffective.

GRAY CLAD ARMY TO MARCH AGAIN

South, will greet them with open arms. Each hoary head will find soft pillows for nocturnal rest, no faltering foot will stumble for want of guiding hand. The meeting in this place, that saw the last full meeting of the Confederate cabinet, will cheer the hearts of all who come to pay tribute to the fast diminishing ranks of veterans and who in spirit still follow the commands of Davis, Jackson and their beloved Lee.

From the mountains to the sea, all below the Mason-Dixon line, gray haired veterans are coming to the meeting in the Old North State. In thousands they will join with former comrades and receive again the memory of those thrilling days when they stood shoulder to shoulder for their cause. Charlotte, Queen City of the

GIRL EVANGELIST FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

YOUNGSTOWN, May 30.—The church should not repel young people who are young but once and want to have a good time, is the opinion of Doris Lee Dudley, 15-year-old evangelist.

The fact that young people want to have a good time is the very reason advanced by the evangelist "why they should accept salvation."

Doris has not found her extreme youth a handicap in evangelistic work. She began her career at the age of nine.

Doris is accompanied on her lecture tours by her mother. She is "booked up" for evangelistic services until next March.

"I haven't finished high school yet but I intend to, and expect to go to college," says Doris. "I won't study theology, though. I want to give my own interpretation of the Bible."

Hoover Picks Representative Committee

The National Law Enforcement Commission, which was picked by President Hoover and will serve without pay, is being spoken of as entirely representative, since the members favor none of the radical elements of the questions with which they will have to deal. Above are six of the eleven who form the commission. Top, left to right, Judge Paul J. McCormick of Los Angeles, Cal.; Southern District Judge of California; Roscoe Pound of Cambridge, Mass., dean of Harvard Law School,

Ever since 1848, when Guadalupe Hidalgo became a part of the United States, White Rock island in San Pedro channel has been a lonely orphan. Cartographers had failed to include it on their maps and Uncle Sam was unaware of its existence, snuggled close to its larger sister, Catalina. Then along came Mrs. Helen K. Morton, of San Francisco, to the United States land office seeking to buy it. Since it was unclaimed land it was necessary for Mrs. Morton to trace some script which was issued years ago to satisfy a land claim to gain title to the island. And now that she owns it she is wondering just what to do with it. The island is above and inset is of Mrs. Morton.

Miss Sanner is one of 2,000 Chicago business girls who enjoy riding, tennis, hiking, swimming, camp craft, etc., at the Young Women's Christian Association summer camp at New Buffalo, Mich.

In 1912 De Palma was ahead in the international 500-mile race classic with only two laps to go when his car broke down. Last year Gulotta was leading 17 laps from the finish when a cracked gas tank ended his chances for the big prize.

PETER QUARTEL HAS CHARGE OF MUSIC FOR BIBLE CONFERENCE

The Cedarville Bible Conference, to be held under auspices of Cedarville College June 12-16, and which is attracting national interest because of the prominence of several of its speakers, especially Prof. J. Gresham Machen, of Princeton Seminary, is also putting on an elaborate musical program in which several Daytonians will occupy a conspicuous part.

Peter Quartel, well-known musical evangelistic chorister of Dayton, will have full charge of the conference music and will lead a great chorus made up of the combined choirs in Cedarville and adjacent churches. Mr. Quartel is popular director and is frequently called upon to lead music for state and national conventions.

Kenneth Randolph will assist him as pianist. While in the Chicago district, Mr. Randolph was often heard over radio and was ever a popular performer.

An outstanding feature of the conference will be the visit of the Central Presbyterian Church choir,

ELSWORTH TO AGAIN RESPOND TO ARCTIC CALL; PLANS TRIP

HUDSON, O., May 30.—Lincoln Ellsworth has heard the call of the Arctic once more. The millionaire of Hudson, O., who might have idled away his time on his ancestral estate in this elm-shaded little Ohio town, will return again to the northland.

The turreted ice mountains gleaming in the midnight sun, the wide expanse of emerald green sea, the fresh pure winds of the top of the world are luring him again.

And though the drifting ice field of the polar sea claimed the life of his friend and teacher, the great Roald Amundsen, and though they almost claimed his, he'll fly an airplane above them once more.

Word from Paris where Ellsworth now is, made announcement of his intention to make another expedition into the arctic.

His purpose is to ascertain the possibility of establishing an air base in the arctic to facilitate an air route from Europe to the Orient via the North Pole.

Aviators have long regarded the top of the world as the logical traffic lane in the days of the airplane and airship.

East and west, they say, was the inevitable direction of travel while mankind was tied to the surface of the earth, but now that he has wings, they believe it is time to turn to north and south routes.

Such experts as Dr. Karl Arnstein of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation of Akron, have predicted that the day will come when huge airships will take off from Cleveland bound for Copenhagen and other European ports via the north pole.

The story of Lincoln Ellsworth is one of the proofs that the spirit of adventure had not died out in the world.

king. His glance reminds you of that of Amundsen or Dr. Fridtjof Nansen who though 67 years old, has himself heard the call of the Arctic once more and plans an Arctic flight in the Graf Zeppelin. Lincoln is the son of the late James W. Ellsworth, multimillionaire coal operator.

Coal was "Jim" Ellsworth's business and Hudson, O., his hobby. He built the town a water plant, paved its streets, built its schools, a model parsonage, a church and a bank, and made Western Reserve Academy at Hudson the world's most heavily endowed secondary school.

But Lincoln's tastes ran to the stirring appeal of exploration.

Every bite of food you eat MUST be digested, and the waste matter eliminated. That's sure. If your stomach is sluggish and old, from the excessive acids which keep eating away the gastric juices, you must dissolve them, or you never will be free from indigestion, sour risings, bloating and drowsiness after you eat.

Get a package of Pape's Diapepsin from your nearest drug store and chew one of the tablets after meals. Instantly the distress is relieved; it dissolves the acids, sweetens the stomach and you will have an appetite again like you had when a child.

All drug stores have Pape's Diapepsin. More than 5 million packages are used a year.

PETER QUARTEL HAS CHARGE OF MUSIC FOR BIBLE CONFERENCE

The Cedarville Bible Conference, to be held under auspices of Cedarville College June 12-16, and which is attracting national interest because of the prominence of several of its speakers, especially Prof. J. Gresham Machen, of Princeton Seminary, is also putting on an elaborate musical program in which several Daytonians will occupy a conspicuous part.

Peter Quartel, well-known musical evangelistic chorister of Dayton, will have full charge of the conference music, and will lead a great chorus made up of the combined choirs in Cedarville and adjacent churches. Mr. Quartel is popular director and is frequently called upon to lead music for state and national conventions.

Kenneth Randolph will assist him as pianist. While in the Chicago district, Mr. Randolph was often heard over radio and was ever a popular performer.

An outstanding feature of the conference will be the visit of the Central Presbyterian Church choir, king. His glance reminds you of that of Amundsen or Dr. Fridtjof Nansen who though 67 years old, has himself heard the call of the Arctic once more and plans an Arctic flight in the Graf Zeppelin. Lincoln is the son of the late James W. Ellsworth, multimillionaire coal operator.

Coal was "Jim" Ellsworth's business and Hudson, O., his hobby. He built the town a water plant, paved its streets, built it schools, a model parsonage, a church and a bank, and made Western Reserve Academy at Hudson the world's most heavily endowed secondary school.

But Lincoln's tastes ran to the stirring appeal of exploration.

JOAN OF ARC FAMILY TREE TRACED; FIND COMPLETE RECORDS

By RALPH HEINZEN
PARIS, May 30.—One of the most gigantic undertakings of genealogy ever attempted has been completed and complete family tree has been drawn showing the descendants of the four brothers and sisters of Joan of Arc. Scores of the descendants are living in France, many of them still within a few miles of the fields where the shepherd girl left her flocks to go to battle five centuries ago.

Genealogical experts were engaged by M. George Robineau, Governor of the Bank of France and himself a direct descendant of St. Joan's brother, Peter, to trace out the branches of the family tree. They have been working for several years, digging through public and family records, and have just completed this work.

They traced thirteen complete generations from Joan's brothers and sisters, Jack or Jackie, Peter or Pierrelot, Catherine and John or Jehan. There is nothing to prove the order of birth of the children of Jacques d'Arc and his wife Isabelle Romee, but Joan was probably the second eldest.

Joan's two brothers, Peter and John, were made nobles by the King and became Knights of Lys, so that it is a comparatively easy matter to trace their family histories.

Peter, Knight of Lys, had four children and it is from the eldest, Catherine du Lys, that the present relatives of Joan have sprung. Large families have been the rule and at present there are ten distant little nephews and nieces in one branch, the Francois family and six in another, the Maucotel family. The other descendants of the Saint's brother are in the Morel, Kleine, Paillot and Robineau families, but all will be extinct this generation except the Kleine, Francois and Maucotel families.
